ProMesa Enterprises Changes Name to Integrated Screening Partners
*Launches New Website

June 27, 2005 – AUSTIN, Texas – ProMesa Enterprises, Texas’ leading provider of pre-employment screening and background checks, announced today that it has officially changed its name to Integrated Screening Partners. The name change is part of a corporate-wide communications program to more effectively describe the company and its business. Integrated Screening Partners (ISP) is a ten-year veteran in the pre-employment screening industry and is known for creating strategic partnerships with their clients. These partnerships encourage dialogue that enables ISP to create customized business solutions designed to maximize their clients’ desired results.

“Our new company name better describes our organization’s business model and services as the leader in customized pre-employment screening,” said Jeff T. Collins, President and CEO of Integrated Screening Partners. “Our commitment to working as a strategic partner with our clients and delivering the highest levels of customer service have contributed to the success of a variety of industries ranging from Fortune 500 companies to educational institutions.”

In conjunction with the name change, Integrated Screening Partners has launched a new corporate website designed to foster a close alliance with the company’s various business partners and customers. The website (designed by Austin-based Springbox) provides information about the company, its structure, activities, news, and available services.

About ISP:

Integrated Screening Partners is a privately owned company headquartered in Austin, Texas and is the premier customizable pre-employment screening company offering affordable service to employers seeking actionable information on potential hires. An industry pioneer, ISP was the first to go paperless in 1996. Working from a foundation of trust and teamwork, ISP has continued to build strong partnerships with their clients. ISP’s unique approach benefits these partners by specializing in what is important to the industry – fully customizable, fast, accurate, affordable and industry-tested expertise in pre-employment screening. ISP’s development of their proprietary WorldPass™ Data Access software also enables them to offer unprecedented 24/7 service to their global clients.
